[1] There's a constant FOG weather effect during the battle that reduces accuracy of all Pokemon on the battlefield by 40% (20% in Battle Frontier). You can get rid of the weather by setting up a different one (like Hail or Sandstorm) but the fog WILL come back once another weather stops. Pokemon with abilities Infiltrator, Keen Eye or holding an Utility Umbrella are immune to the accuracy loss. You can also get rid of the fog effect completely by using the move Defog.

[2] A negative energy fills the battlefield and makes every non-Dark, non-Ghost and non-Psychic type Pokemon take 8,33% of damage at the end of every turn. Pokemon with abilities Unaware, Oblivious and Magic Guard are immune to this effect, no matter their typing.

[3] Vicious Sandstorm: A weather effect that works like regular sandstorm, but deals damage of 1/8 of max HP instead of 1/16 and can't be removed from the field. It boosts Ground-type's Special Defense to +1 along with Rock- types.

[4] Shadowy Veil: A field effect that makes every Ghost-type Pokemon take half damage on full HP. Additionally, all Ghost-types won't be affected by entry hazards on full HP. Non-Ghost type Pokemon cannot use the moves Safeguard and Substitute

[5] Pixies: All Fairy-type Pokemon on the switch-in get a +1 boost to the lower defense stat (prioritizes Defense over Sp.Def if both defenses are equal).

[6] Rainbow Battle: All Dragon-type Pokemon on the field have their moves' secondary effect chance doubled including poison chance from the ability Poison Touch. The chance stacks with the increase from the ability Serene Grace with the exception of flinching moves.
